LETTER FROM THE EDITOR

Months came and went. Seasons passed. Still no new PUNC. Zine empires were born and died. Bands split and reformed. New holes formed in my jeans and my hair changed colour. STILL, no new PUNC.

Finally you have it in your grubby paws....the undead, frankensteinized, mechanically-reconstituted issue 6, made of a million scraps and half-baked ideas.

What you do with it now is up to you...read it, sell it, rip it to pieces. I don't care. I already have your €3.

The Radiators From Space - DOLLAR FOR YOUR DREAMS

Yes, this is more old music. Shut up and take your medicine. The Radiators From Space were the first Irish punk band ever*. They released 2 albums - TV Tube Heart, Ghostown - then broke up in 1981. They reunited in 1987 for an "Aid to Fight Aids" concert in Dublin. This was recorded & released on cassette & that was basically that.

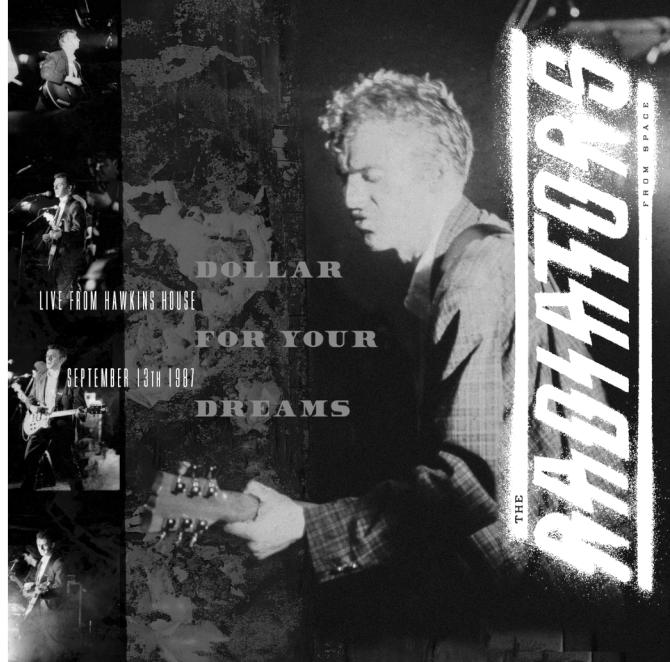

BUT !!! Now you can listen to it on Bandcamp or buy a CD, & I think it's worth buying a CD. The audio quality is LOADS better than anything previously available.

But what do the band sound like, you ask.

Lead singer Phil Chevron (RIP) was in fine voice. The band aren't as fast as they were on TV Tube Heart, but they have a good, Dr Feelgood, 60s garage kind of chug that's nothing to sniff at. "High energy rock", as they usedta call themselves.

The songs that are classics to me and an army of 50 year old men sound pretty great & gain from being played live - even a 7 (!) minute version of Faithful Departed works. We also get the 1st ever version of "Under Clery's Clock", despite what it says in every edition of England's Dreaming by Jon Savage (he has ignored my letters). I can take or leave the cover of the Hucklebuck, but overall this is a v. worthwhile listen. See also their out-of-print 2006 reunion record Trouble Pilgrim, which they should reissue next.

And if you don't know the Radiators' first 2 records, go off & educate yourself.

WHY PUNKS

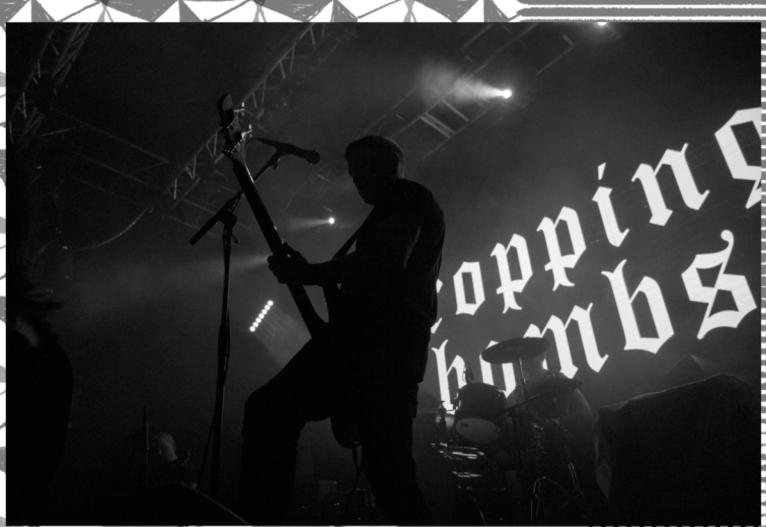

SHOULDN'T RIDE BIKES

1. As my dad might say, "your bike might get whipped". Theft is rampant & difficult to prevent.
2. Rain (& wind) will ruin your mohawk.
3. Riding a bike while wearing jeans may lead to the terrifying phenomenon known as "crotch blowout".
4. However: you can't patch' or, indeed, stud lycra cycling shorts.
5. If you get really angry at someone, you might throw your bike at them and kill them.
6. Car drivers don't care if you live or die, &:
- 6a. The Gardai don't care that the car drivers don't care if you live or die, &;
- 6b. People who write for newspapers don't care that the Gardai don't care that car drivers don't care if you live or die.
7. They won't let you on the bus with the bike.

You may remember that in the last issue of PUNC (no, not the 1-pager, the Christmas annual) I presented 5 reasons why punks should ride bikes. In the interests of balance, here are 5 reasons (plus 4 more) why punks shouldn't ride bikes.

A gig review from summer 2023

JUNE 25TH - MERYL STREEK - POST PUNK PODGE & THE TECHNOHIPPIES - DJING BY ROD & ROB , XIRA, REDD OPHIS, ARROSA, DISCARNATE

WHERE THE FUCK IS EVERYONE? Fewer than 20 people are here in this boiling hot room above the Wily Fox pub. I guess no one likes to go out on a Sunday. Fibula & Tibia open the nite up with a bit of DJing. Some great tracks_ I've never heard anyone play Flux of Pink Indians at a club before_ but it's almost too hot to dance. They play the Sex Pistols. They play the Stooges. I dump my bandanna in a glass of water then tie it around my neck to stay cool. Then it's time for PPP agus na Techno Hippies. The Techno Hippies stay on the stage, which is behind a barrier. Podge, shirt off, big brown envelope firmly clamped on their ceann, descends unto the audience with a big green sack, like Santa if Santa was from Limerick. Podge throws gifts to the crowd - brown envelopes, and degrees from Tralee University. Sure a masters in tea making isn't worth the paper it's printed on nowadays.....

• • • • • • it's a bit difficult to follow everything, because you can't hear what Podge is shouting, but who cares when you have this incredible apparition sweating and furious in front of you. Opening song is Government Insecurity. GARDAÍ SIOCHÁNA DRESSED LIKE HOUSING CRISIS GARDAÍ SIOCHÁNA, GARDAÍ SIOCHÁNA. There's a pause as Podge hands out communion wafers. I eat 3 and hope this means I can tell my mam & dad I went to mass.

Donkey Healey Rave is another banger, bashing you over the head with its irritatingly catchy techno riff. TRALEE AQUADOME IS A PYRAMID SCHEME. In my little notebook, I write "FOR INVESTIGATION: Irish obsession with aquadomes".

There's almost a moshpit at a few points, but the raveheads aren't willing to contribute – except for one lunatic in a white t-shirt who bounces up & down like he's on a pogo stick for most of the night.

I mean lunatic in a nice way.

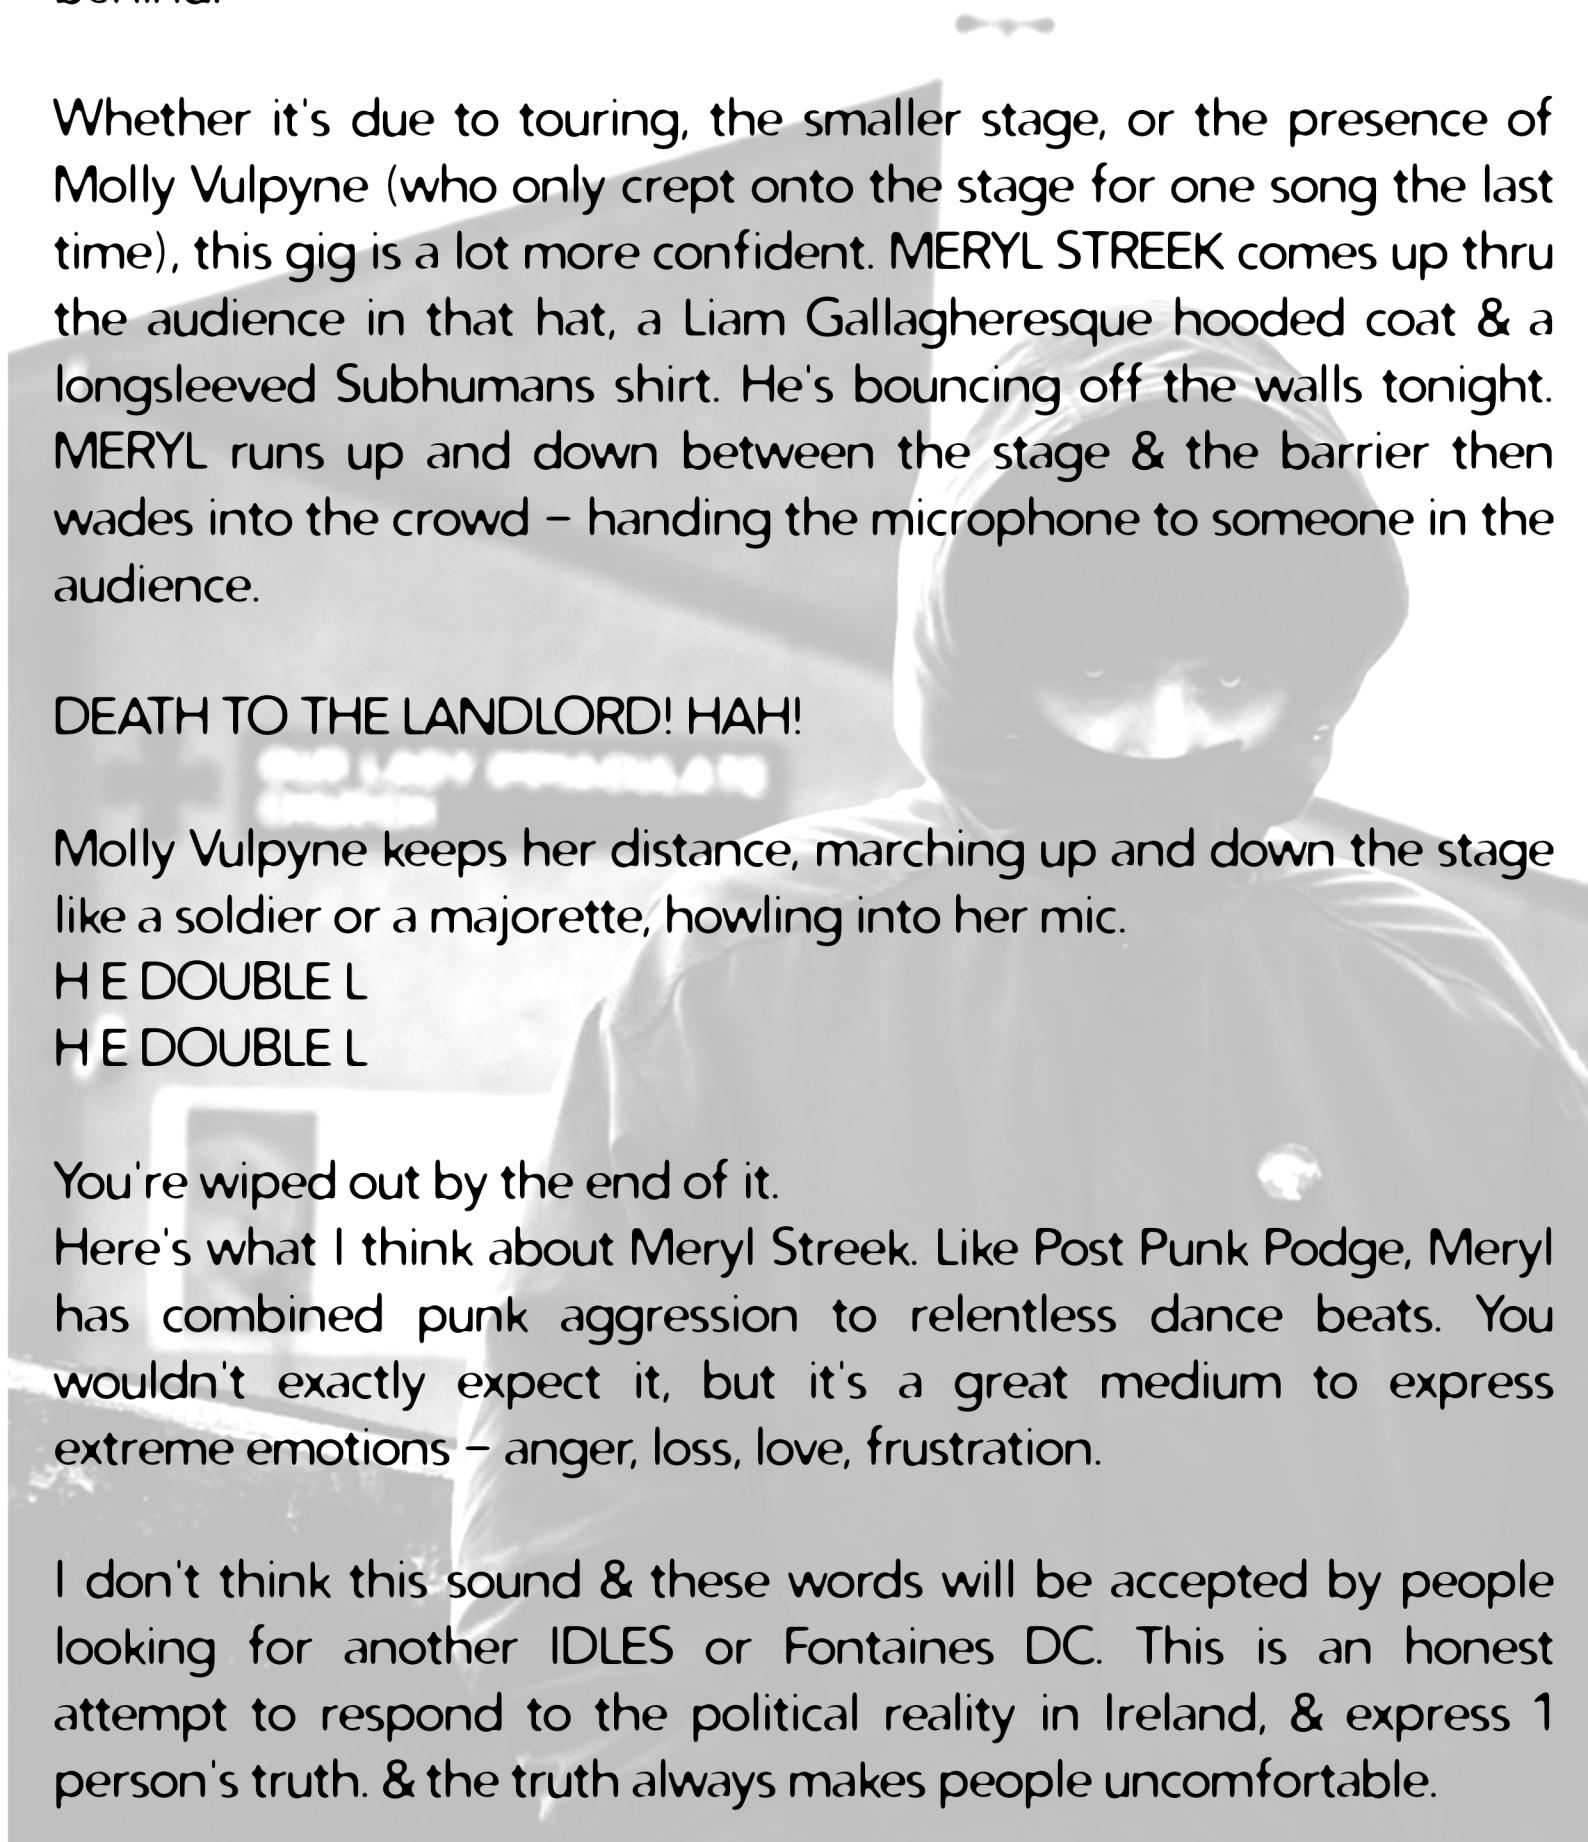

Podge climbs back on the stage brings out the electric violin for the last song.

I went downstairs to get some water while Arrosa was doing her set. I'm no techno expert but I'll do my best to describe her sound: heavy relentless beats, more of a thud than a shriek.

I had a brief chat with Podge & Meryl & some of Meryl's friends, who were all very lovely. Thank you for the stickers Meryl.

MERYL STREEK

I saw Meryl Streek at the Paranoid Visions 40th anniversary gig in 2022, & he seemed a bit uncomfortable onstage there at the Button Factory. That was a big venue & an indifferent crowd, & it can't be easy commanding an audience on your own with no guitar to hide behind.

Whether it's due to touring, the smaller stage, or the presence of Molly Vulpyne (who only crept onto the stage for one song the last time), this gig is a lot more confident. MERYL STREEK comes up thru the audience in that hat, a Liam Gallagher-esque hooded coat & a longsleeved Subhumans shirt. He's bouncing off the walls tonight. MERYL runs up and down between the stage & the barrier then wades into the crowd – handing the microphone to someone in the audience.

DEATH TO THE LANDLORD! HAH!

Molly Vulpyne keeps her distance, marching up and down the stage like a soldier or a majorette, howling into her mic.

HE DOUBLE L

HE DOUBLE L

You're wiped out by the end of it.

Here's what I think about Meryl Streek. Like Post Punk Podge, Meryl has combined punk aggression to relentless dance beats. You wouldn't exactly expect it, but it's a great medium to express extreme emotions – anger, loss, love, frustration.

I don't think this sound & these words will be accepted by people looking for another IDLES or Fontaines DC. This is an honest attempt to respond to the political reality in Ireland, & express 1 person's truth. & the truth always makes people uncomfortable.

WHAT HAPPENED NEXT?

- I WENT TO AUSTRALIA FOR THREE MONTHS and forgot about the zine. Sorry!
- RAVE AGAINST THE MACHINES, who organized the gig, moved to Tokyo.
- Fibula & Tibia moved to Berlin.
- MERYL STREEK toured the UK in February 2024 & released some singles ("If This Is Life", "Counting Sheep"). He's releasing his next album, "Songs For The Deceased", in October 2024.
- POST PUNK PODGE & THE TECHNOHIPPIES released their 2nd album, "Keep On Raving In The First World", in October 2024. An Irish tour will follow in November.
